THE SUMMER ENDS

By the end of the summer, many looked forward to the first day of school. When school opened, most came dressed up for the occasion. The rest of us didn't think it was worth getting dressed up. Soon afterward came the homework and most wished it was summer again.

Our Junior Prom wasn't exactly as planned. The guys shaved and got dressed up in suits and tuxes, and the girls made themselves practically unrecognizable with the gowns, hairdo's and make-up. Most couples cut out after it was over and made the best of the evening. The memories remain.

Memories of the Class of . . .

Sitting in the senior lounge: on the chairs, on the table, the floor, on the window sills, anywhere there's room. Latest gossip and small talk. Everything you wanted to know about the sex life of most of the kids in the class. Time goes by ever so slowly, particularly when there's nothing to do. "Hey, what time is it?" A clatter of heels and sneakers, and the seats and tables are empty.

Only A Man's Game?

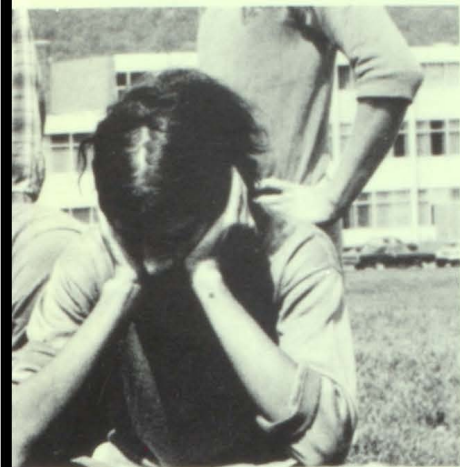

The Girl's Soccer

Team accomplished something which has never been done in the past by any girls team from Chester: they won the Western Division Championship and played in the Orange County Girl's Soccer Championship.

The Team could not have done all this if it wasn't for the winning attitude each girl possessed. The teams 8-1-1 regular season record reflects this attitude.

Since only three girls will be leaving the team, the soccer team is looking forward to another great season next year.

Basketball

It's twenty after six, and the players of the first game are out on the floor, going through warmups. The Varsity Club members selling hot dogs this evening are heading up to the Home Ec. room. Meanwhile, spectators arrive at the gym entrance with money in their hands.

Throughout the first game, more and more people arrive, filling the gym up, ever so slowly. At a quarter of eight, the first game ends with Chester in the lead 58-56. There is a mad rush into the gym lobby while the floor exchanges JV players for the Varsity Basketball Team. As the Hambletonians charge onto the floor, the cheerleaders do their thing-stomps, cheers and applause.

The buzzer is sounded, bringing an end to the break between games. The voice behind the microphone welcomes the crowd to Chester High and proceeds with the line-up for both teams. The National Anthem is played and the game begins.

Ten men occupy the spotlight while their coaches observe, referees blow their whistles and jog the length of the floor, and fans boo or cheer alternately. First period ends with Chester behind 14-18. The players are whisked to the side, their attention riveted to their coach as he goes over their performances. Spectators jostle in their seats waiting for the action to resume.

Booing, cursing, cheering, screaming.

At the end of the first half, the score is Chester 26—Visitors 28. Chester is not yet ready to give up.

Everything is a loud buzz in the small area of the gym lobby as a multitude of spectators, all ages and shapes, crowd about, each packed in closely with those around him. Some are waiting on line to buy hot dogs or soda, some are trying to make phone calls at the booth, most stand about talking to friends, making plans for the evening after the game is over. The half time break is nearly over now and most return to their seats, waiting for the ref to blow his whistle, resuming the action.

30-28

No one is sure as to how this game will turn out. The crowd gets caught up in the excitement and plans for the evening are left off for a while. Fans begin booing the refs again. A small fight breaks out on the floor as two players have a disagreement as to who should have the ball. Both players get benched. The veins on Mr. Payne's neck stand out as he shouts various plays to his men. "Number TWO!, Number TWO!"

Photographer's flashes go off from various corners of the gym.

More fouls are called on each team. Basketballs are shot home with amazing accuracy to their destinations. The score is tight. The racket from the stands is almost unbearable as the game nears its finish. The players of both teams take wild shots in the few remaining seconds.

48-48

A foul is called on the visiting team. A chorus of groans rise up out of the far side of the gym.

The man from Chester is at the foul line and all eyes are on him as he readies himself for the shot. He wipes the sweat from around his eyes. The visitors raise a clatter of noise as he elevates the ball. The ball floats through the air for a second, then dives down through the net to break the tie.

THE CHAMPS!

1973 Season

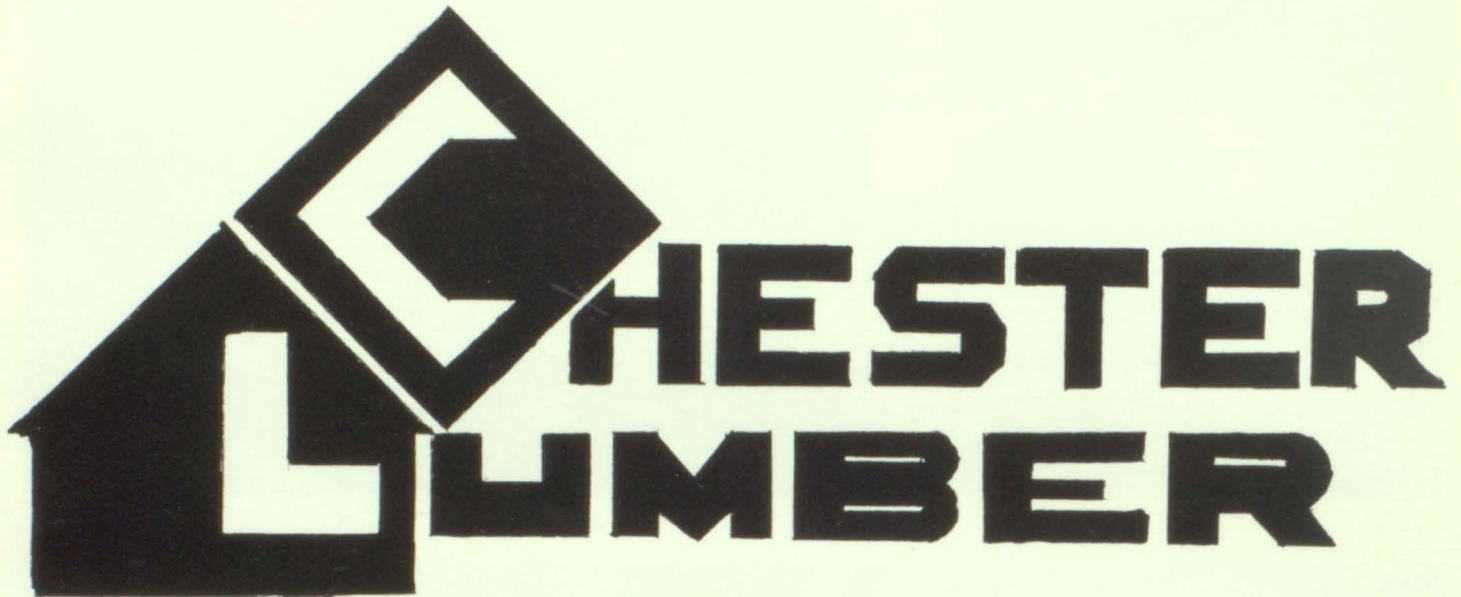

The Chester High School Baseball Team terminated a great season by whipping Millbrook High School for the Regional Championship. This was news!

Prior to that game, Chester had conquered Delaware Valley and Florida for the Class D and Sectional Championships. In fact, the regular season started off on the right foot as Minisink met defeat at the hands of Chester. Things looked bad for awhile when Goshen crushed the Chester men, but Chester came back and finished its 1973 season with a 10-5 record.

A Moment Of Doubt?

A Conversation Between 2 Baseball Men

"Well . . . what do you think? Can he hit the ball?"

"I don't know, Mr. D.; I don't know."

The Math Teacher

The Math Teacher spoke to her crew in disorder
Whilst drawing her charts in white lines,
Noting the affectation on which they did border
She said, "These are merely symbols and signs!"

Who cares for vectors
And divisional sectors
For theorems and tangents and laws,
For angles and planes which drive us insane
"They are crisis without useful cause!"

The crew nodded dully
Not knowing quite fully
That Math teachers occasionally err,
For Algebra and Trig
Are subjects so big
That only the fools wouldn't care!

She rambled on
And like the wave of a wand
Skipped thirty-one chapters to do,
The crew didn't follow
For their minds were quite hollow
And none of them knew what to do!

The bell rang quite soundly
Whilst the students said roundly
That Phys. Ed. was next on the list,
The Teacher gave looks
To several charts, maps and books
And said, "The others will have to be missed!"

The students piled out
(Prematurely no doubt)
Which left the teacher unable to say
"If you'd bothered to ask,
It would have been a most agreeable task
To have given you all my OK."

A Final Note . . .

Life is the ultimate learning process. We learn through our experiences with ourselves and others. Through the lessons we learn in life we try to construct the formulas which will obtain happiness. Some of us have been successful, some have not. So we keep trying.

We leave you now, and in closing, we hope that you behind and next to us, will never forget, nor cease to search for, your own formula for happiness.
